

“The Hare and the Tortoise”

Hare	Narrator 1
Tortoise	Narrator 2
Fox	Narrator 3

Narrator 1: Hare and Tortoise were talking in the garden.

Hare: You are such a slowpoke, Tortoise!

Tortoise: I am not! I just like to take my time.

Hare: If we raced, I know I would beat you.

Tortoise: You would not!

Hare: I would so!

Narrator 2: Hare and Tortoise decided to have a race.

Narrator 3: They went out to the field and saw Fox.

Tortoise: Hey, Fox! Will you help us? Will you start our race?

Fox: I would be happy to. Who do you think will win?

Hare and Tortoise (together): I will!

Fox: Ready, set, go!

Narrator 1: Hare and Tortoise started their race. Hare started off with a great pace.

Narrator 2: Tortoise kept plodding along, but a lot slower than Hare.

Hare: I am so far ahead of Tortoise. He will never catch up. I think I will take a rest.

Narrator 3: Hare sat down by a tree and fell asleep.

Narrator 1: Tortoise continued plodding along and passed the tree where Hare was sleeping.

Narrator 2: Hare woke up and found out that Tortoise passed him.

Tortoise: I can't believe I won!

Narrator 3: Hare and Tortoise continued to be great friends.
